Present Junior Citizen Awards

Six young Albertans have been chosen as Calgary Power 1968 Junior Citizens of the year.

The awards were presented September 13th by Youth Minister Robert Clark at a luncheon at the Voyageur Hotel in Banff.

The judges chose the Grade 8A class at Didsbury Junior High School for the Junior Citizen of the Year Group Award. Through their own donations and a vigorously-organized raffle project, the class raised a $149 contribution to C.A.R.E.

The individual awards were presented to: Doyle Booth, of Breton, who saved a friend from drowning in spite of being unable to swim himself and being further handicapped by a crippled arm.

Connie Forsberg of Edson, was nominated for her cheerful outlook and achievement in passing Grade 8 with an 80% average, following a cancer operation which resulted in amputation of her leg at the hip.

Mark Frank, of Sylvan Lake, did not panic when his 8 year old brother fell through the ice of the lake. He seized his brother's coat, held on and called for help.

Greg Reeves, of Leduc, has earned Queen Scout rank in spite of being handicapped by arthritis and bone surgery to his arm. Greg is active in church work, an assistant to the Scout Troop and Cub Packs, president of the Leduc Venturer group and works on the school newspaper staff.

Cindy Fillinger, of Bashaw, saved her father's life by quick thinking at the time of a severe farm accident. Since then, she has cheerfully taken over household chores so her mother can work on the farm.

Donna Maxwell, of Elnora, displayed excellent leadership when she assumed full care of the household for her three brothers after her widowed mother entered hospital in January.

Election of Seven County Councillors on November 30

Plans are proceeding for the forthcoming election in the newly-created County of Stony Plain. The new county is the result of a ministerial order-in-council passed recently giving the M.D. of Stony Plain County status and providing for the incorporation of L.I.D. 77 in the new administrative unit.

The order becomes effective January 1st, 1969.

Nominations for councillors for the seven county division, will be accepted by Returning Officer George Gamble at the Municipal Administration Building in Stony Plain on Saturday, November 2nd. Election will be held on November 30th.

Rudolph Zander of Tomahawk, Reeve of the present Stony Plain M.D. Council, noted in Drayton Valley last week that the divisions had been established by the Department of Municipal Affairs with an attempt to keep them as nearly equal population-wise as possible. Division No. 7 taking in much of the former L.I.D., and Divisions 5 and 6, are larger in area than the more densely-populated Divisions 1 and 2 at the eastern end of the unit.

In accordance with The County Act, at the first meeting in each year a county council shall appoint a school committee which shall consist of not less than three members. Also that urban representatives be appointed to the school committee.

Otto Schuster, Secretary-Treasurer of Stony Plain M.D. said the present Act provides for each town, such as Stony Plain and Drayton Valley to have a representative on the school committee. Only one member will be appointed to represent the three villages, on an alternating basis. That is, the member will come from Spruce Grove one year, Entwistle the next, and so on.

However, Mr. Schuster said there is an indication that the Act will be revised at the next session of the legislature to provide each village with a member on the school committee.

Naming the new county is creating quite a good deal of interest according to Mr. Zander, who says he has already received several phone calls suggesting names. His suggestion for those with names in mind is to hold on until details of the "Name the County Contest" are made available when a prize will be awarded.

Accident Takes Life

Mr. Church's car was struck from behind by another vehicle driven by Jerome Davidson, 27, of Rocky Rapids who was hospitalized at Drayton Valley with chest injuries.

The Church car burst into flames following the accident and Mr. Church was found dead in the car after the fire was put out.

WEEKLY VIEWPOINT

A series of brief meditations for the readers of The Western Review prepared by the clergy of the Drayton Valley Ministerial Association

"Majority Opinion"

By Rev. G. E. Ingram

We often hear the remark, "If you can't beat them, join them." It is usually expressed as a kind of philosphy by someone who, while he may be in agreement with a certain principle, will not rise to defend it if it is an unpopular cause.

Similarly, we often hear it said that "You can't fight the whole world," when someone sets out to oppose a popular fallacy or custom on the grounds of it being unchristian or irrational.

Our children early learn the same argument: "But everyone's doing it."

The reasoning, if any, behind such an outlook could be called: "the pressure of the peer group". It is certainly a blind kind of reasoning--especially where principle and conscience are compromised in assenting to the accepted line. In our western democracies we are subject unconsciously, to such pressures. Motivational researchers (used by advertising agencies, politicians, and fund-raisers) influence our daily living by reinforcing such "hidden-persuaders"; and we become convinced that individuals must conform to the majority in dress, drink and diversion.

The "hippie" non-conformist is trying primarily to give the lie to this philosophy and to combat this pressure. And we can respect his protest here, I think, but we cannot respect his particular way of protesting. I mean we can't have any illusions about its effectiveness. His protest's expression, not his interpretation of norms, is wanting. The social criticism, the exposure of society's accepted stupidities, and real insight into human nature cannot come about unless fixed standards can be applied.

Unless we follow Christ's teaching by precept and example and, as well, the guidance and grace of His Holy Spirit, we cannot know what to do that is right nor have power to do it when it is perceived. The ability to make a right judgement in all things is the gift of the Holy Spirit of God. The worldly-wise cannot have this ability; but the sons of God, i.e., those led by His Spirit, can. But they, too, must ever be tractable, humble and serving. One person and God are a majority.

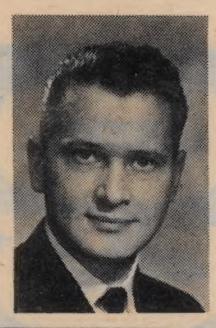
Report From Parliament Hill



By Allen Sulatycky, M.P.

Considerable controversy has arisen in Parliament, and out, over proposals to change the rules under which Parliament operates. Many of the rules at present in use have been applied for many decades even though the passage of time, by any unsentimental test, has rendered them obsolete.

Those of us who sit on the Government side of the House, and in particular most of the new young Members, believe that the people of Canada will soon lose confidence in a Parliamentary process which does not recognize the fact that the problems faced by society today have increased not only in quantity, but also in complexity to a degree that was beyond the comprehension of the framers of some of the rules which govern that process.

It is very reassuring to the many new Members who wish to fashion a new Parliament by modernizing the rules, to find that support for such modernization is forthcoming from no less an authority than Stanley Knowles. Mr. Knowles is, of course, the New Democratic Party's expert on Parliamentary procedure. In point of service, he is one of the oldest Members of Parliament. In fact, it is no closely-guarded secret that most Members, regardless of party affiliation, regard his opinions on the rules as of the greatest validity.

Mr. Knowles and his party as well as the Creditistes, are in agreement with the government on the desirability of making the rules more functional.

The position taken by the Official Opposition is much less clearly defined. The Opposition House Leader, Mr. Baldwin, has been known to be a very avid proponent of sweeping rule changes. However his latest pronouncements on the subject are so reserved as to be almost a reversal of his previous position.

The most outspoken opponent to the overhaul of House rules is the Old Warhorse, John Diefenbaker. It is not difficult to understand the reasons for Mr. Diefenbaker's opposition. There are few human beings who do not in their lifetime form a number of attachments the proposed breaking of which is a call to battle.

Mr. Diefenbaker's objections stem from understandable human reactions. In one sense it is perhaps fortunate that he is objecting, for it should make it evident to some Members who would move too rapidly, that rapid change is often disrupting to many individuals.

Generally speaking, it is the younger Members who are most insistent that the rules be changed to allow Parliament to function more efficiently. Leadership in this direction has been given by Prime Minister Trudeau. Having been in the House himself for only three years, he is not so imbued with tradition that he cannot contemplate change.

The ironic aspect of the whole situation is that those Members who most desire the changes, namely the new ones, of which there are a about 100, are the least competent to speak out against the old rules except in generalities.

The rules and their interpretation involve complexities which are not mastered by many until they have been in Parliament for a good number of years. As a result, it is only those Members who have served that good number of years who can speak with complete knowledge on the subject. Those who have only recently entered the House can sense that much they are required to do is meaningless, but they cannot always pinpoint the rule which condemns them to often purposeless routine.

The whole matter of House rules has now been referred to a select Committee of twelve Members from all parties. It is hoped that this Committee will come back with a report by December 1, 1968 which will result in new and modern rules for the Members and a more efficient Parliament, more responsive to the demands of the people of Canada.

Defensive Driving Course Proposed

Considerable interest has already been shown in regards to a defensive driving course in Drayton Valley this fall and it would only take a few more potential students to get the course underway.

Any licensed driver will find the Defensive Driving Course a fruitful way of learning more about safe driving skills. The whole community benefits through the reduction in the number of traffic accidents.

Defensive driving describes the skills developed by professional drivers to keep them out of accident producing situations. These skills have been taken apart, analyzed, studied and put together again in a course for all drivers. It has been proven without doubt that the skills of defensive driving can be taught.

If interest warrants another course it will be held in mid-October. Anyone curious about D. D. C. is asked to contact Dave Ellery at 542-3689.

Miss Doreen Van Ember will be honored at a shower to be held in the Scout Hall at 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, October 20th.

Drayton Valley, Alberta

Vol. IV, No. 41 Oct. 16, 1968

A generous donation of several hundred dollars by Mr. Thomas J. Campbell of Tomahawk will help the Drayton Valley Legion in completing the club room in the new building. Mr. Campbell (r) a World War II veteran and resident of the area since 1929, is shown making the presentation to Legion President Bud Ball. Mr. Campbell farmed in the Rocky Rapids and Tomahawk districts and was a member of the Evansburg Branch before the formation of the Drayton Valley Legion Branch.

EVANSBURG NEWS

MRS. M. BRUNER,
Correspondent

Corrections seem to be the order of this week's news column so here they are: My sincere regrets to Mr. Allen whose name appeared in the news two weeks ago. At that time I mentioned that Mr. Allen was ill. This is not so, as he informs me he is well and working these days. Sorry, Mr. Allen.

Now, in last week's news was stated that the UCW are having a fall tea, bazaar, and bake sale on November 11th. This is very much in error. The fall bazaar, tea and bake sale will be held on November 16th, on a Saturday.

The parents of the boys in the 1st Pembina Wolf Cub Pack held a meeting on October 3rd to form a new group committee for the coming year. Elected to this committee are the following: Chairman, Mr. Grassi; Vice chairman, Mr. Aspeslet; Secretary, Mrs. Bruner; Treasurer, Mr. Willoughby; Other committee members are Mr. Thorburn, Mr. Gylander, Mr. Hampton, Mr. Smith, Mrs. Grassi, Mrs. Willoughby, Mrs. Smith and Mr. Bjiornstad. Cub Master will be Mr. Krasowski, assisted by Const. Banasiak. Scout master will be Mr. Mazeppa. Registration night for the boys will be held on October 17th and all the parents are urged to come and register their boys at this time as well as meet the Cub and Scout masters and have a cup of coffee.

The Agricultural Society held its regular meeting to wind up details for the awards night to be held soon. In the meantime, an auction sale of various items is being planned for the immediate future. It is hoped that every member of the Society will donate items no longer of any use to them, for this sale.

The gymkhana club held its last gymkhana of the year on October 6th. The weather was rather chilly but a few hardy onlookers turned out to see the events. An accident to Mr. Ted Stephens occured to mar this final gymkhana, luckily, Mr. Stephans was not injured critically and is now back home again after spending a few days in the Drayton Valley hospital.

Alberta Hail Studies Summary for 1968

The Alberta Hail Studies project has just completed by far the largest and most ambitious field observation program in its twelve year history. A total of 24 scientists, 6 technicians and 20 assistants were involved during the summer. Even though the hail activity in Alberta was well below normal this year, a tremendous amount of valuable data was obtained on all aspects of hailstorms.

The area under intensive study each year extends from Leduc south to High River and out from the foothills to a Hanna-Viking line. The project headquarters are located just south of Red Deer near the centre of the 22,000 square mile study area. From this base one of the best equipped weather radar systems in the world scans out to a range of 90 miles. The radar is specifically designed to study hailstorms and give a detailed picture of their internal structure. Simultaneous time-lapse stereo cloud photography gives a record of the external development and appearance of the clouds.

As the echoes are tracked on the radar, mobile units are directed by radio into the storm vicinity. Two units are equipped to measure rain and hail fall rates and collect precipitation samples for later laboratory study. From these and other fixed stations, several hundred rain and hail samples were collected and will be studied for the presence of freezing nuclei, sulphate and silver. Other mobile units released and tracked weather balloons to measure the wind flow around and into the storms.

Four other research groups worked with the Hail project this year. The Saskatchewan Research Council set up electronic equipment in the Lacombe area to measure the electric field in the atmosphere, and to count the number of lightning discharges as the storms passed overhead. A team from the University of Wyoming brought a specially instrumented Twin Beech aircraft to Alberta and spent many hours flying under severe storms, taking measurements of the air and moisture flow into the base of the clouds. The aircraft penetrated several small growing cumulus clouds to collect and count cloud droplets and ice crystals. Survey flights were also made to measure the number of ice nuclei and the sulphur dioxide concentrations within parts of the project area. A meteorological research T-33 jet aircraft from the National Aeronautical Establishment in Ottawa spent a few days measuring the winds and turbulence up to heights of 30,000 ft. around storms. Two experiments were performed this year in conjunction with chemists from the Desert Research Institute at the University of Nevada. Small amounts of silver iodide and indium hydroxide were released from an aircraft into the updraft area of two storms. Rain samples were collected downwind between 30 and 90 minutes later. The amount of these chemicals will be determined in each sample. The analysis of these experiments should give further insight into the rain forming process in the clouds.

All of these scientific data would lose much of their value unless full details were available on where it hails. This is where the Alberta farmers play an extremely important role in the project. Some 25,000 farmers in the main study area, and an additional 10,000 in the area south of Calgary, provide data on where, when and how much hail falls. These reports are sent in on special report cards, or obtained through telephone surveys conducted by Hail Studies staff. Over the past twelve years, about 35,000 hail reports have been received. These have all been placed on punch cards and are processed by the electronic computer. As a result more is now known about the climatology of hail in central Alberta than anywhere else in the world. It is thus possible to compare the 1968 hail season with the past eleven years. During the past summer hail occurred somewhere in central Alberta on a total of 70 days, a little more often than normal. However the total number of reports sent in was less than half of normal, indicating limited areal extent of the hailfalls. In addition very few farmers reported large hail and there was a large amount of soft hail. All of these factors combined to give much less hail damage this year than usual. An interesting feature was the almost complete lack of significant hail activity in the normally high risk area northwest of Red Deer.

Collection of all these data during the summer is only the beginning. During the coming winter months meteorologists at the Research Council of Alberta and McGill University, as well as at the other co-operating agencies, will carry out the task of analysing the large amount of information collected. More will be learned about the general weather patterns favourable for severe storm development; where, when and how the storms originate; and how the hail forms and grows within the storm. The farmers hail reports are essential for this analysis and without their co-operation this project would not be possible. All of these data are finally put together, to help refine the model of the Alberta hailstorm, and suggest possible ways of developing practical hail suppression techniques.

Drayton Valley Lodge No. 391 of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of Canada have been selected to host the Provincial Elks Association Fall Executive Meeting planned for October 27th.

This is the first time that the local Lodge has been so honored and Secretary, R. Cowan, who is looking after reservations and many of the arrangements advises that it is anticipated that Provincial Officers will be here from nearly every part of the Province.

Present plans call for a banquet for the visitors at the Cardium Room on the evening of the 26th, followed by a Lodge Social at the Scout Hall, with the actual meeting to take place the next day.

Mr. Cowan also advised that Drayton Valley had been selected as the site of the local District's Annual Spring Meeting next May and said that further details would be forthcoming on this event at a later date.

BURTONSVILLE NEWS

Buford Walker is now employed at the power plant at Sundance. Mrs. Walker's parents from Sask. were visiting them last week.

Stanley and Doris McDougall went to Warburg Sunday afternoon to visit Mr. and Mrs. Hokon Hansen who were unfortunatly away from home. However, the MacDougalls stopped at St. Francis and visited the Albert Osbak home and reported that Bernice had gone to the Royal Alexandra Hospital for a few days for a check up.

The snow coming at this time has caught a good many farmers with swathed fields of grain and with the amount of rain before the snow, it will be a week or more with good drying weather before combining can go into operation again.

You know, one of these days someone is going to give me 15 lashes with a plastic rose.

The majority of plastic flowers look ghastly and with the wide variety of other materials available, I'm not certain why people use them.

A copper enamel dish or an attractive piece of glassware will give far more pleasure and add far more to your room than a dusty array of plastic.

Many herbs, annuals, and grasses can be dried by tying bunches and hanging them upside down for a few weeks.

Gourds and pomegrantes will dry if you puncture them at each end with a skewer. Put them on a wire rack to permit air circulation and prevent moulding.

Since water isn't required, you can choose a variety of containers- a wicker basket, a small gnarled tree stump, or a pottery bowl of casual texture.

If your arrangements are of the milk bottle variety, try a pin holder fastened with floral gum. It makes flower arranging much simpler.

Dried arrangements are long lasting but not ever lasting. Make several and alternate them or reuse the materials in a different arrangement. Throw them out when they become faded and dirty.

Seek Presents For Patients

Make room in your thoughts of Christmas for the consideration of the forgotten patients in our mental institutions. The Canadian Mental Health Association again in 1968 is conducting a Christmas Gifts program for patients in mental hospitals who are not remembered by their community or friends.

The gifts required must be new, but you can also consider a cash gift which will be used to buy a personally needed gift for one of the patients. C.M.H.A this year is attempting to gather enough gifts for the patients in mental institutions at Edmonton, Camrose, Ponoka, Claresholm, Raymond, and Red Deer.

Details of how you can help can be obtained from: The Canadian Mental Health Association, Alberta Division, 619 Revillon Bldg., Edmonton.

Plan Bingo

The Drayton Valley Senior Citizens Club will hold a bingo in the Elks Hall at 8:00 p.m. on Thursday, October 24th.

Plan Evening Basketball

Any men interested in playing basketball on Friday evenings are asked to contact Mr. Walder White at 542-4033 all day Friday or Saturday mornings.

It is not intended to form a league but rather pick up teams for exercise and recreation on Friday evenings.

Town Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Holmen have been enjoying a visit with both their boys home-together for the first time in six years. Corporal Layton Lonstrup from Ottawa and Doug Lonstrup from Uranium City. Miss Michiline Richard R.N. was also a visitor from Ottawa.

Plan Raffle

At the meeting of the Hospital Auxiliary on Thursday last it was decided to hold another candy wreath raffle. Tickets for this are now on sale from members. The wreath will be on show in a few weeks time and the draw will be made at the Christmas bake sale in December.

A press agent was admiring a flourishing plant in the office of a newspaper editor. "How did you ever get it to grow so tall?" he asked.

"I'll tell you the secret," said the editor. "We grind up all the press releases that come in, and use them for fertilizer."

MOTHER'S MEETING

Cub and Scout Mother's Auxiliary meeting will be held on Wednesday, October 23rd at 1:30 in the Scout Hall.
